Picnicking and Swimming

All areas, except Wild Horse Island, have picnic facilities near the lakeshore. Swimming is allowed, however no lifeguards are provided at any park. Underwater diving is also popular in the crystal clear waters of the lake. Swimmers and divers should shower or dry off immediately to avoid the “swimmer’s itch” parasite that is common in the shallow waters of the lake in late summer.

Fishing and Boating

Boat ramps are available at all parks. In addition, fixed-keel sailboats can usually be launched at Big Arm and Yellow Bay. Flathead Lake is famous for fishing. Species include lake trout throughout the year; yellow perch during winter and spring in the southern part of the lake; lake whitefish in the summer and fall; and Westslope cutthroat trout, which are catch and release only. Special regulations apply within the Flathead Indian Reservation. Be sure to check the fishing regulations before heading out. Boats and fishing charters may be rented at private marinas in the towns of Polson, Bigfork and Big Arm. Boat sewage dump stations are available at Wayfarers and Finley Point state parks.

Marine Trail

Marine campsites are available at the five land-based state parks. Landing areas are identified from the water by a diamond-shaped sign. Watercraft must be human or wind-powered beachable craft, able to pull out of the water onto the shore at night. Most parks have two campsites, with tent pad, fire ring and table. West Shore has 3 sites; Yellow Bay has one site. Yellow Bay prohibits open fires; camp stoves or charcoal only at this site.

Hiking and Bicycling Trails

Opportunities for hiking and bicycling are available at most state parks around Flathead Lake. There are self-guided interpretive hiking trails at Big Arm, Wild Horse Island and Wayfarers.
